ANECDOTES OF GOV. MORRIS

To the Editor of the Baltimore Federal Gazette

SIR—Permit me to give the public two anecdotes relating to the late Honourable Governeur Morris, which will shew the correct manner in which he anticipated the issue of the French Revolution, and the cause why his recall was solicited by the Jacobin Government of 1793, as mentioned by Judge Benson, in his communication to Mr. Gardeneir, lately published.

Having gone to Paris in July 1792, with an enthusiastic admiration of the Revolution, which was common with young Americans at the time, and fearful lest the Continental Powers should controul the intended reformation, I was about to take an active part; but I found in Mr. Morris a mentor, with that penetrating foresight, sound judgement and enterprising spirit which rendered him at once a most useful statesman and an ornament of his country. I waited on him for letters of introduction to the Marquis de la Fayette, in hopes of being admitted in the Army under his protection, if not into the family of the General himself, then recently appointed Commander in Chief of the army of the Rhine. I was accompanied by Major M—— then late of the North Carolina line, who is still living in France, and had the same views with myself at the time.

The Minister received us very politely, and offered us his serious advice on the subject, which was, in substance, that the Marquis had lost his influence and would soon be driven from the army, if not murdered by his subalterns, as Dilon had just been; that the Assembly were pushing matters to extremes beyond all reason or justice, and, after ruining the government, would subject the country to a horrible anarchy and despotism, the immediate result of which could not be exactly foreseen, but certainly not the establishment of liberty, which we all wished. Under such circumstances the Minister said he could not advise us to go into the Army, though he would furnish the letters if we still required them. Mr. M——and myself agreed to consider further before we took the letters; but, the views of the jacobins developing themselves daily, we soon abandoned all idea of entering the army, and returned our thanks to Mr. Morris, who extended his protection and friendship to us as long as he remained at Paris, and who with us, witnessed the accomplishments of his prophecies.

There is no doubt but the Minister gave the American government the same intimations, and that the strong neutral stand taken by President Washington in 1794, was partly due to Governeur Morris, and for which this country is scarcely less indebted to them both, than for their revolutionary services. Of this our public archieves ought to afford the requisite proof, but the following anecdote displaying the humanity and gratitude of the Minister, was not of a kind to occupy the same place in his public despatches or private communications.

As far as the writer could ascertain at Paris, Mr. Morris had never been suspected of advising or assisting the enemies of France; on the contrary, I know that many of the leaders of the Jacobins expressed their unlimited confidence in his integrity; but the interest he took in the personal safety of a patriotic and innocent Monarch who had, not long before, essentially contributed to American Independence, and in that of his unfortunate family and friends, and especially of that beautiful Queen Maria Antoinette, whom we saw conducted, back foremost in a common cart to the place of execution, upbraided as she went, in the vilest terms by the vilest of populace; this interest was sufficient to induce the jacobins to wish his recall. The request made by the American Government for that of the revolutionary minister Genet, whose conduct had been quite different in this country, furnished them the opportunity to ask it; and as it relieved Mr. Morris from witnessing further scenes highly afflicting to every feeling heart, the news of his return to his native and much loved country, was gratefully received.

On the ever memorable tenth of August after viewing the destruction of the royal Swiss Guards and the dispersion of the Paris militia, by a band of foreign and native incendiaries, the writer thought it his duty to visit the Minister, who had not been out of his hotel since the insurrection began, and as was to be expected would be anxious to learn what was passing without doors. He was surrounded by the old Count D'Estaing, and about a dozen other persons of distinction of different sexes who had, from their connection with the United States, been his most intimate acquaintances at Paris, and who had then taken refuge with him, for protection from the blood hounds which, in, the forms of men and women, were prowling the streets at the time. All was silence here, except that silence was occasionally interrupted by the crying of the women and children. As I retired the Minister took me aside, and observed, I have no doubt sir, but there are persons on the watch, who would find fault with my conduct as Minister, in receiving and protecting these people, but I call on you to witness the declaration which I now make, and that is, that they were not invited to my house, but came of their own accord; whether my house will be a protection to them, or to me, God only knows, but I will not turn them out of it, let what will happen to me; to which he added, you see, sir, they are all persons to whom our country is more or less indebted, and it would be inhuman to force them into the hands of their assassins had they no such claim upon me.

Mr. Morris had the happiness to find that his house did serve as a shelter to them for that time, but the venerable and brave D'Estaing was afterwards beheaded, and all the other persons forced to fly into Switzerland, until the fall of Ropespierre in 1794.

Circuit Court of the United States.—On Wednesday came on, before the Hon. Judges Story and Davis, the trial of William Bevans, a marine, in the service of the U. S. on the charge of having killed Peter Lungstrum, a seaman, on board the U. S. ship Independence, a short time since. The trial continued until Thursday evening, when the jury returned a verdict of Guilty of Murder. Sentence has not been passed on him, as his counsel moved in arrest of judgment, on a question of the jurisdiction of the court, the offence having been committed in the harbour of this town. The question we learn, will be referred for decision to the Supreme Court of the United States, which will convene in Washington, in February. Bevans—who is quite a young man, not apparently 19 years old—was ably defended by Messrs. Dutton and Dexter—the counsel assigned to him by the Court. But his guilt was apparent from the evidence. He was, it appeared, on duty as a centry on the gun deck of the ship, within the space occupied by the cooks. A short altercation ensued between the prisoner and the deceased, who was cook's mate which was begun by the prisoner:—in the course of it the deceased called the prisoner a liar; on which, after receding a few feet from the deceased the prisoner turned, advanced on and stabbed him with his bayonet—which occasioned his immediate death.

SINGULAR INSTANCE OF FEMALE HEROISM.

About two weeks since the wife of Mr. John Cobb, of Providence in this county, observed a wolf following some sheep directly towards the house in which they lived; and as her husband was absent from home, she immediately took down his rifle and approached the wolf, who stopped as she advanced. She levelled the piece at him and snapped it three times in succession without effect. Being convinced that the rifle would not go off, she resolved upon another mode of attack, and immediately approached the wolf who began to advance and with the breech of the gun she struck him on the head, when the breech broke off—not discouraged however at this accident she kept the wolf at bay with the barrel, and called to her son, a boy of about ten years, to bring an axe; who did so—but as he approached, the wolf made towards him; when he threw the axe at the wolf and retreated.

The wolf immediately turned, and again attacked the woman; who had in the mean time secured a club, with which she beat the wolf, and killed him, without receiving any injury.

Affairs of Europe.

Extract of a letter from a Freuch officer of the first distinction and respectability, in St. Petersburg, to his friend in N. York, dated in August last.

"I arrived at St. Petersburg in the month of October last with all my family. The emperor saved my life in taking me out of prison in August, 1815. The infinite clemency of our great and good king [Louis] destined me to follow Ney and Labedoyere, bnt the generous and magnanimous Alexander saved me; and the grandson of Louis the XVth was forced to show mercy, and have one victim the less.

"Presuming it will give you pleasure to know all I can gather on the actual state of Europe, I judge proper to state to you that the French government has fallen into the utmost contempt and derision, which is openly and publickly manifested here on all occasions.——The ambassador, count de Noailles, receives continually such intimations as sufficiently prove to him these facts. If the allies could agree on the new sovereign to be given to France, our affairs would soon be terminated; but the difference of opinion on this head arrests every thing.——Russia, Prussia, and the Low Countries appear to be in favour of putting the Prince of Orange on the throne; but Austria and England persist in holding up to view Napoleon the 2d. What is certain, is, that on the death of the king, this question will be decided, unless before that desired event a difference should arise between the Allies, and bring to light their projects, rendered necessary and indispensable by the sanguinary anarchy which the Bourbons have established in our unhappy country.

Germany and England have reduced their military establishments, but Russia has a million of men under arms.—All the regiments are complete and perfectly organized at this moment: 16 new regiments of lancers and the imperial guard, which I see exercising every day are magnificent.—The latter counts 50,000 men in its ranks, all old soldiers, perfectly well disciplined. You see, my dear friend, that the moderation of the emperor Alexander is the only bound of his power, and I dare to hope from him a relief from the miseries which hang over and weigh upon our afflicted country. His soul is too great and too generous not to fix a term to the sufferings of a nation, like ours oppressed by a stupid fanaticism, and by a family whose system of government is composed of weakness, vengeance and barbarous atrocities."

PARIS Oct. 22.

Charles Monier, Ex-Adjutant of Engineers, condemned to die for being an accomplicce in a plot for obtaining possession of the castle of Vincennes, after poisoning the garrison, was to have been executed yesterday. He was brought from the Bicetre to the Conciergerie, at half past nine o'clock. Still ignorant of the rejection of his appeal to the Court of Cassation, he was quite at his ease, and thought only of undergoing an examination: but when the goaler told him he must prepare for death, he broke out into violent transports.—"What," said he, "must I die to-day! I have been deceived, I expected a pardon." The Abbe Montez, chaplain, then offered him the consolation of religion, but he was incapable of listening. He asked urgently for M. Touret, his advocate, whose arrival appeared to calm him. "If I make discoveries," said he "may I hope for my pardon?" At last about four o'clock, when the executioners entered his cell, he said, "let some magistrate have the goodness to hear me, I am ready to speak."—Soon after M. Dupaty, a counsellor of the Royal Court, came down to a room of the prison, into which Monier was brought.—From the window of this room, which looks into the court of the prison, Monier perceived the fatal cart, at which he shuddered with affright. Monier remained about three quarters of an hour with M. Dupaty, and the discoveries he made seemed so important, that the Chancellor was made acquainted with them, who sent an order to stay the execution, all the preparations for which were made in the Place de Greve.

DANGEROUS ATTRACTIONS.

A Danish Journal offers the following anecdote, "During several months past, a number of individuals, especially young men bewildered by ambition, have put themselves to death, by throwing themselves from the Round Tower; and to prevent these misfortunes, it has been found necessary to station sentinels at the place. The same precaution is frequently resorted to in Norway, with regard to a lake in the neighbourhood of Bergen. In a basin, extremely deep, surrounded by projecting rocks, the lake spreads its still and motionless water so effectually concealed from the light of day, that the stars may be discerned in the fluid at noon day. The birds, conscious of a kind of attractive power resident in this vast gulf, dare not attempt to pass it. Whoever visits it, after having with great exertions clambered up the barrier of rocks around it, experiences a most uncontroulable desire to throw himself into this heaven reversed. It may be referred to the same kind of delusive feeling which is suffered when in a small boat, crossing a still water, so perfectly transparent that every stone at the bottom may be seen; it seems to invite the stranger to enter; and the passenger feels himself willing to comply. The Norwegians attribute this sensation to the magick power of the nymphs or Nixes, who are still supposed to people every river and lake in the romantick districts of Scandinavia."

London papers received at Charleston, mention that "the ministers of Louis XVIII. had resolved to make a fresh attempt to negotiate for the sovereignty of St. Domingo. New Commissioners sailed from a port in the neighbourhood of Brest in a private manner, in an unarmed vessel. They directly go to Petion's dominions, and it is understood that their tone will not be so high as that of their predecessors."

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1816.

On the 13th inst. a bill for the establishment of an Invalid Corps was reported in Congress, and one for a National University; both twice read and committed.

A letter received in New-York from a gentleman at Augusta, Georgia, Nov. 23, says "there is some prospect of establishing the head-quarters of the southern division in the vicinity of Mobile, to be prepared to meet any movement of the Spaniards. The 4th and 7th regts. of infantry are ordered to assemble at Fort Montgomery, about 20 miles above Fort Stoddart."

FOR THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

The man who has no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd by concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirits, are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus;
Let no such man be trusted.

Shakespeare.

EUGENIUS was educated by a tender father with the most indefatigable care and attention. The seeds of virtue were early implanted in his bosom, and his heart was the seat of every benevolent feeling. But virtue, embraced with too much zeal became moroseness; and religion, which should ever win by its sweetness, when joined to austerity, made him shunned by those who might else have profited by his example. His dependants were cut off from every rational and social pleasure, and instead of enjoying with temperance the fruits of their honest labour, the gifts of Heaven were torn away, and while they suffered every toil, they reaped no reward

EUGENIUS saw himself surrounded with discontent; and found that though a strong arm may force obedience, it cannot make a bosom happy that groans under oppression.

One day when he had wandered to a considerable distance from home, he arrived towards evening at a small hamlet, where his eye was struck with the neatness and beauty of every object around him. He approached a house to ask for refreshment, but as he reached the threshold the sounds of music vibrated on his ear. He paused—and was about to retreat from contamination, for in his eye hilarity was vice. As he hesitated, an old man whose locks were *silv*ered over with age, and whose limbs bent under a load of years, appeared at the door and invited him to enter. He approached—but again he paused: and being asked the reason of his apparent aversion, candidly stated them. "Young man," said the stranger, "I have passed a long life in this world, and have ever found, that a cheerful heart is the best proof of the virtue of its possessor. God, who has given us social natures, never intended us for seclusion or wished to deprive us of innocent enjoyments. A smiling face is the best proof of a contented heart. Enter, and behold Religion without fanaticism, and virtue without hypocricy and moroseness. You will see the worship of God combined with the duties which we owe to ourselves and our fellow creatures. Tarry with us a few days, and you will find sobriety and industry without; content and cheerfulness within. You will find labour and relaxation following each other in regular succession, and each day concluded with thanks to that Providence which enables us to support the one and to enjoy the other."

EUGENIUS entered—he remained a week with his friendly host, and became convinced that religion is never so engaging as when she is dressed in the garb of cheerfulness; that moroseness is a mask put on by fools to cover their ignorance or imbecility: that austerity has its root in envy and uncharitableness; and that the best compliment we can pay to Heaven, is to enjoy her gifts with cheerfulness, temperance, and contentment. He was humbled; and returned home under a conviction that worldly theories are folly when contrasted with experience; and that no rule is good which cannot be reduced to practice.

Exportation of Specie.—It is stated in the American Advocate (published at Watertown, Jefferson County, N. Y.) that Mr. George Record, merchant of Sackett's Harbor, has during the last month, shipped to Lower Canada two tons of specie.

EVIDENCE.—A few years since a man was convicted of murder in an English court, solely on circumstantial evidence: and if we remember right, he confessed his guilt at the place of execution. A trial has recently taken place in the Supreme Judicial Court, at Boston, which exhibits quite a different case: George Coombes was indicted for the murder of Maria Coombes, and the charge was sworn to by several witnesses all prostitutes except one. But it appeared from circumstances, that the acts attributed to Coombes were physically impossible, and he was acquitted.

"Not only the prisoner (says the Boston Daily Advertiser) but the public are greatly indebted to the learned counsel for the defendant, for the skill and fidelity with which they exposed the contradictoriness of the most important statement of the witnesses. Under a less able defence, and with less care in opposing the positive declaration of witnesses of doubtful character, by a mass of circumstantial evidence, the truth might never have been ascertained, and the prisoner might have suffered the highest punishment that our laws inflict."

The Judicial Court at the Cape of Good Hope in August last, granted a divorce for incompatibility of temper.—This incompatibility of temper, is probably where the parties are both alike. The Spanish Chief, Toledo, so highly extolled in the democratic papers for his incorruptible attachment to the revolutionary cause in Spanish America is now accused in the same papers as being an instrument of the King; This ought to teach the Editors not to be too warm in asserting the purity of men merely because they appear to entertain the same sentiments as themselves. ib.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Munro to Lieut. Guy of the 8th U. S. Infantry, dated

"Fort Kinkead, Missouri Territory, Sept. 19, 1816.

I was out on a hunting party with some of my neighbors about the 10th of June last, 35 miles hence; and in an open prairie we espied a pen of logs about ten feet high—it was covered over with earth or mud. Led by our curiosity we threw off the earth at the top to see what it contained, and discovered the corpse of a man in a sitting posture, with a mat of flag around it. We next took off the mat, to enable us to perceive who was thus interred. He had on a black fur hat, which was by this time gnawed by mice; he wore a wig of fine light hair; had on a scarlet coat (an officer's) and an elegant epaulett on each shoulder. There were no buttons on his coat except those which held on his epaulets. The description of these I do not recollect, except that they were stampt underneath—Philadelphia. His waistcoat was spotted Cassimer, a vine figure, and had covered moulds; had nankeen pantaloons with feet to them, and a pair of neat fashionable shoes lined and bound. He had an elegant bamboo cane, with a gold head, and I. M. C. very nicely engraved upon it. I think he was upwards of six feet high. It is probable the body had been deposited there for 13 months or two years—how long it is impossible precisely to ascertain.—The flesh was all decayed on his feet and legs. I think he must have been buried by the Fox Indians, as it was after their fashion of burial.

If he was a military missionary, sent to extend British alliance with, or influence over the savages, or whoever he was, requiescat in pace! Doubtless his death prevented the massacre of some American frontier settlers; for the friendly sentiments of the Indian tribes towards him (and most probably his cause) seem evinced by the marks of respect they paid to his remains.

Mrs. CARSON, who has made herself so notorious, has as we are informed, forfeited her recognizance, and left Philadelphia; bail was entered for her, by Mr. Norbury Bashford, with whose capability to pay the penalty, Judge Badger was satisfied; but since the sitting of the Court of Quarter Sessions, she has not appeared, and four writs of capias, which were issued against her, and entrusted to different officers, have been returned, without her being found; a suit has been commenced against the bail for the forfeiture of fifteen hundred dollars.—Phi. Paper.

Another most villainous attempt to set fire to our city was made in the course of last night. The villains got into the rear of those valuable stores in Market between Fourth and Fifth streets, by clambering over the walls; and, appear, very deliberately, to have kindled a fire in the cellar window of Messrs. Cope's Store. Fortunately it did not spread, or the loss of property might have been immense. What would have added to the conflagration in that neighbourhood, is, that a gunpowder ware-house is not many yards distant from the spot. It may not be improper, while noticing this subject, to recommend to the patroles particular vigilance in examining the different allies, courts &c. where the midnight incendiaries are most probably lurking. ib,

House of Representatives.

Mr. Johnson of Ky. from the committee on military affairs, reported the following bill:

A BILL making donations of land to the disbanded Officers of the late Army.

Be it enacted, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That donations of land be granted to all the officers of the regular army who have been disbanded as supernumeraries, either in consolidating regiments or corps during the late war, or in reducing the army conformably to the act of March the third, one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, as follows, to wit: to each major general, one thousand two hundred and eighty acres; to each brigadier general, one thousand one hundred and twenty acres; to each colonel and lieutenant colonel, nine hundred and sixty acres; to each major, eight hundred acres; to each captain six hundred and forty acres; to each subaltern, four hundred and eighty acres; and to officers of the medical and other staff, who have no rank, in proportion to their pay according to the scale aforesaid.

This bill took the usual course of reading and commitment.

On motion of Mr. Peter of Md.

Resolved, nem. con. That the military committee be directed to enquire into the expediency of establishing by law one or more founderies for the manufacture of brass and iron ordnance, and what alteration it is expedient to make in the present system of supplying the army with provisions.

Mr. Hopkins having stated the departure of his colleague, Mr. Sergeant, for Europe, (about the business of the United States Bank,) moved, "that he have leave of absence for the remainder of the session." This was objected to, inasmuch as he had not appeared. After some remarks from several members, Mr. H. varied his motion, which went to excuse Mr. S. from attending during the remainder of the session. After debate—for the motion, 74; against it, 81 Mr. S. has not resigned his seat.

The grand seignior has absolutely refused an asylum in his dominions to any of Bonaparte's late officers We believe it has been already mentioned that the governor of Smyrna had been strangled, & his head put up at the gate of the seraglio, for giving a hospitable reception of Savary and Lallamand, There is a report of a dreadful insurrection of the Janassaries at Adrianople. The plague still rages in some parts of Turky.

AFRICA.

It would appear that some attempts to introduce Christianity among the Caffrees has considerable success. They say that 10,000 have been converted.

The French papers severely reprehend the British for making treaties with the Barbary pirates, saying that thereby their sovereignity is acknowledged—legitimazed. Algiers is fast rising from its ruins.

General Brayer, who arrived at Baltimore a little while ago, has, with his son, a fine youth of about 14, departed for Buenos Ayres. His boy, happily, arrived a few hours previous to the embarkation of his father, sent by his mother to administer "to the sorrows of a banished man." He brought with him a superb sword, formerly presented him by Napoleon. "It seemed (says an account of this affair) like the restoration of a lost child to its parent," and the veteran received it so.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

A number of persons to me unknown, have been lately trespassing on my farm, situated on Peters creek, Mifflin township, under the plea of hunting out a tract of land claimed by the heirs of William M'Maghan, the title to which never existed but in the minds of those amphibious claimants, and a few interested gentry who have been aiding in this persecution against the family of the Wrights this ten years past.

I will give the above reward to any person or persons, who will give such information as will bring to conviction, the person or persons, who, under this or any other pretence, entered the enclosure of my tenants, on said premises; threw down the fences and marked trees (as if being trees of an old survey on said farm,) as nothing but the most depraved motives could influence those who would commit such au offence against his neighbour, without notice either to me or my tenants, the latter being scarcely ever off the premises. I do forwarn all persons under any plea or claim whatever from enteing on the ground contained within either of the two surveys situated as aforesaid and late the property of Zadock Wright deceased, for the purpose of cutting and carrying away wood, coal &c. as I am determined to prosecute for every trespass of that nature, after this notice.

DOCTOR CHISHOLM'S
Anti-Bilious Pills,

Of a quality superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a GENERAL MEDICINE, in this Countr.

NOW prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr. Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India Islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates.

This extraordinary Medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills. The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuent of Bile, is without example; never producing debility or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child weakly female:

THE BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained in this country, and in the neighbourhood of vers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excruciating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those diseases arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flaxseed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and DISEASES OF THE LIVER, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case the dose may be increased according to the strength or constituton.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their strength and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing & great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.

The above valuable Medicine is Sold ONLY in Pittsburgh, by
J. P. & J. W. SKELTON,
at their Wholesale and Retail Apothecary and Drug Store.
